

Investors turn away from hedge funds in favour of traditional investments

Recent lacklustre performances of the hedge fund industry is prompting some investors to turn to more traditional investment types, including cash and money market instruments

August 17 (Reuters): According to US fund manage