

Funds to see more demand for structured products

According to the Boston Consulting Group, the waning appetite for risky investments and the rise in hedge funds' assets under management will produce a bigger demand for structured investment products.

September 11 (Reuters): Ac