

The line is blurring between hedge funds and private equity

According to a British law firm, the line between hedge funds and private equity funds is becoming blurred in Europe, creating both opportunities and dilemmas for institutional investors.

September 12 (Reuters): According to Bri