

SEC Commissioner: Sound industry practices are better investment safety providers than SEC regulation

Paul Atkins, one of the five commissioners of the US Securities and Exchange Commission has stated that sound practices inside the hedge fund industry provides better investment safety control than government regulation.

October