

Study: European pension funds increase alternative investments but not hedge funds

According to a new study, European pension funds are likely to increase their allocations to alternative investments, although not necessarily to hedge funds.

December 8 (IPE.com): According to a study compiled by the consultin