

Germany plans to tighten rules on shareholdings

The German government is planning to tighten the rules governing the disclosure of shareholdings in a bid to protect companies from aggressive hedge funds.

January 9 (Financial Times): In an attempt to protect companies fro