

Hedge funds play hardball with firms filing late financials

A new way of extracting returns from company investments has been invented by hedge funds: If the companies fail to file their quarterly reports on time, the funds will try to force them to pay up any debts immediately.

<