

Hermes exec: Hedge funds will be pressured by return and transparency demands

Hedge funds will find themselves under increasing pressure to return more and become less opaque, something which will put them more under the looking-glass at pension funds over the next ten years, foretells Mark Anson, chief executive of Herme