

U.S. government is new 'dead man walking,' Hedge Fund manager says

Fund manager Eric Sprott called Citigroup, Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac, and General Motors "dead men walking" in late 2007.

On Tuesday, he said the U.S. government is the new dead man walking, partly because it may struggle to keep borrowing enough