

BOJ leaves policy unchanged at 0.1 pct as expected

The Bank of Japan Friday unanimously voted to keep its overnight call-rate target at 0.1 pct. as widely expected.

The bank has not made an interest rate change in 12 months, since December 2008, when it cut its key rate from 0.3 pct.