

Structured products finished strong in 2009

The global market for structured products survived a very difficult period over the course of the global credit crisis and posted a strong finish to 2009, according to a survey by Greenwich Associates.

According to pr