

Ambrosia adds Attefall as New Portfolio Manager

Stockholm (HedgeNordic) – Swedish multi-strategy hedge fund Ambrosia has added Fredrik Attefall as new portfolio manager. According to a post on Ambrosia's website, Attefall will join the fund management company on April 3 and will also become a partner of the firm.

Attefall has an extensive experience from the hedge fund industry having managed a portfolio within the Brummer Nektar fund for nine years. Prior to joining Nektar, Attefall worked as a currency options trader at Deutsche Bank and Merrill Lynch in London, Tokyo and New York for almost nine years.

In a comment to the new hire, Ambrosia writes:

"Ambrosia are very happy to have Fredrik joining the team. We are convinced that Fredrik's vast experience from and knowledge about financial markets will benefit the entire management of the Ambrosia fund. Through this hire, Ambrosia also adds complementary portfolio management skills given Fredrik's background from the currency and options markets.
