

World's largest hedge fund is reportedly changing its structure

Bridgewater is changing its structure. Bridgewater Associates plans to adopt a partnership structure that will give some of the investment fund's top officials more control in running the hedge fund, according to a New York Times report. The latest reported change at the fund firm founded by investing titan [...]

Click here to view original web page at www.marketwatch.com