Crypto uncertainty prompts unorthodox fund strategies

(HedgeWeek, By Conner Guidry) - As interest in the markets for crypto currencies and digital assets continues to grow, some hedge funds and members of the buy side are venturing into this rapidly changing ecosystem. Black Square Capital, a Washington DC hedge fund investing exclusively in the crypto space, believes crypto investment strategies must adopt an element of creativity to stay competitive and remain safe from extreme volatility that has affected the industry in recent years.

According to Black Square portfolio manager Chris Yoo: "As of now, there is no right way to invest in the crypto space. There must be a certain element of creativity because most crypto projects don't have simple cash flows."

The full article can be read here