Month in Review

After a strong first two months of the year, Nordic hedge funds ended the month of March down 1.2 percent on average (96 percent reported). Nordic CTAs struggled the most last month, as many trend-followers were wrong-footed amid the wild bond market gyrations caused by the collapse of Silicon Vallue Bank and Signature Bank.

Four of the five strategy categories within the Nordic Hedge Index ended March in negative territory, with diversified (formerly multi-strategy) funds managing to edge up 0.1 percent. Nordic CTAs lost 4.3 percent on average in March, as trends in equities and fixed income reversed sharply following the collapse of Silicon Valley Bank. Fixed-income hedge funds fell by 2.0 percent on average to end the first quarter in positive territory at 1.6 percent. Equity hedge funds were down 1.3 percent in March to trim their 2023 advance to 1.8 percent. Multi-manager funds, formerly funds of hedge funds, edged down 0.8 percent on average last month.

The performance dispersion between last month's best- and worst-performing members of the Nordic Hedge Index widened month-over-month. In March, the top 20 percent of Nordic hedge funds gained 2.8 percent and the bottom 20 percent lost 5.7 percent, representing a top-to-bottom dispersion of 8.5 percent versus 5.9 percent in February. In February, the top 20 percent were up 3.4 percent and the bottom 20 percent were down 2.5 percent. Only one in every three members of the Nordic Hedge Index with reported March figures posted gains last month.
